Sexual harassment covers a broad spectrum of behaviors and can take many different forms ranging from unwelcome comments to unwanted physical contacts. Both women and men can be victims, and sexual harassment can occur between members of the same sex. In addition, sexual harassment can occur between coworkers, supervisors, and employees, students and employees, third parties and employees, third parties and students, or between two or more students.

We all suffer when sexual harassment occurs. Whether we are distracted by direct sexual harassment, by witnessing sexual harassment, or by rumors and gossip about sexual harassment, we can lose focus on the primary reason for employment. Sexual harassment can even force victims to change their careers or leave their jobs.

Sexual harassment is:
- any behavior of a sexual nature that creates a hostile work environment
  - OR
- any sexual advance or request for sexual favors that is linked to employment or a tangible job detriment

Are you a harasser?

- Do you make sexual/sexist jokes in the work environment without being 100 percent certain how all others present will respond?
- When others create a sexually harassing atmosphere through comments and jokes, do you join in?
- Do you physically touch people when you’re not certain how they will receive such behavior?
- If a fellow worker rejects initial attempts to socialize or requests for a date, do you persist?
- Do you display pictures or other material in the workplace that could contribute to or create a sexually harassing atmosphere?
- Do you think sexual harassment is a trivial issue?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, you may need to change your behavior in the workplace. Remember, a sexual harasser may be a coworker, supervisor, student, school volunteer or chaperon, or a third party whose employment requires them to be on school grounds, at a school sponsored activity or at any activity reasonably related to school.
Employees and students who believe they have been sexually harassed should immediately report the incident. In addition, victims are encouraged to firmly inform their harasser that they are offended by the harassment and want it to stop. Non-certified employees should report to their direct supervisor, and certificated employees should report to the building principal. If the person to whom you should report is the offending party, you should report the incident to the next higher level of administration or supervision. You may bring a witness and/or representative with you. All reports of sexual harassment will be promptly investigated. Substantiated charges will result in appropriate corrective action up to and including discharge or expulsion of the offending party.

If you see someone else being sexually harassed, encourage the victim to take action and offer to be a witness. Victims of sexual harassment may be vulnerable. They may deny their feelings or believe that they are somehow responsible for the harasser’s behavior. The victims may also feel that others will blame them for causing the situation or not believe them. If the victim will not come forward, you are encouraged to confidentially report the sexual harassment to the appropriate supervisor/administrator. It is particularly important that you report any incidents of sexual harassment you witness when the victim is a student. Sexual harassment will not be solved if the harassers are protected by silence.

Sexual harassment and/or retaliation related to a sexual harassment complaint is prohibited by Board of Education policy, and by state and federal law. The District’s sexual harassment policy is located in the District’s policy handbook (policy number 3910), and copies of the policy are available for employees and students in the principal’s office. Violation of this policy is grounds for disciplinary action including possible dismissal.

According to the District 207 policy, sexual harassment may include, but is not necessarily limited to:

- unwelcome sexual advances
- requests for sexual favors
- verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature
- sexually oriented “kidding,” “teasing,” or “joking”
- subtle pressure for sexual activity
- unwelcome touching
- suggesting or demanding sexual involvement accompanied by implied or explicit threats concerning an individual’s employment status, a student’s grades, or similar personal concerns
- sexual innuendo
- sexually suggestive comments, insults, threats, noises
- jokes about gender-specific traits
- leering, pinching and/or brushing the body
- display of sexually oriented materials

“As a matter of policy, the sex, sexual orientation, color, physical handicap, race nationality, residence, age, religion, or religious affiliations of any applicant shall not be considered either a qualification or disqualification.”
